Overview

When a patient is deceased, the Recording Details of Death form should be completed by the service who are providing the patient care (see Recording A Patient Death user guide). The formal registration of death will also be completed on the National NHS Spine, and any 'open' referrals should be discharged (closed).

Once the referral is closed, any activities such as equipment collection or meeting with relatives that have taken place, cannot be added as an appointment. In such cases, the Activities After Death form would need to be completed.
